

COMMUNITY BENEFIT SNAPSHOT

We invest in greater Seattle's health

Caring for our communities has never been more important. To achieve our vision of health for a better world, we worked closely with our community partners to ensure we addressed the communities' most pressing needs.

Addressing health challenges in our communities

Our community health needs assessment guides our investments and partnerships. In 2020, we focused on ending homelessness and addressing mental health.

Bringing our Mission to life

At Providence, we invest in improving community health across all seven states we serve. Called by our Mission, we are committed to serving all within our communities, especially the poor and vulnerable.

Our shared values in action

Supporting Parents and Helping Children Thrive through Partnerships

Swedish Health Services supports the Denise Louie Education Center (DLEC), which promotes school and life readiness by providing multi-cultural early learning services to children and families. While our organization, programs and services have radically expanded to meet the needs of King County's growing and increasingly diverse population, their mission remains the same: fill gaps in early childhood education that fail the most vulnerable families and to close the opportunity gap that less advantaged children and caregivers face compared to peers.

Swedish also invested in counseling services for DLEC families and staff, and a program that gave families access to organic produce from local farmers markets. This shift from sponsorship to investment, says Nina Luu, DLEC's family services supervisor, helped to create a more robust network of support encompassing partner organizations, local government agencies and DLEC alumni. "We are fortunate to be surrounded by a community that gives back," says Luu. "Our job is to empower families and equip parents with information they need to be advocates for their children. Our amazing community partners like Swedish help make this possible."

“ We have faced challenges, but I am optimistic about the future because I have seen firsthand the incredible collaboration and creativity with which Swedish and our partners come together to address inequities in health care and help reduce barriers to care in our community. ”
