PROVIDENCE INVESTS IN OREGON'S HEALTH

EXPANDING BEHAVIORAL HEALTH RESOURCES

With the goal of increasing the behavioral health workforce to support people impacted by substance use disorder, Providence awarded funds to Bridges to Change to develop an in-house peer mentor training program. Once the training program is operational, hundreds of peer mentors will be able to serve people in the community struggling with substance use.

HELPING LATINX PEOPLE ACCESS MENTAL HEALTH CARE

Providence funding helped support Northwest Catholic Counseling Center increase mental health counseling opportunities for people with low incomes. With a particular focus on offering behavioral health resources for the Latinx community, the center was able to provide culturally and linguistically appropriate services to clients, including individual counseling sessions, with a cost of as little as one dollar.

PROVIDING A LIFELINE FOR YOUTH IN CRISIS

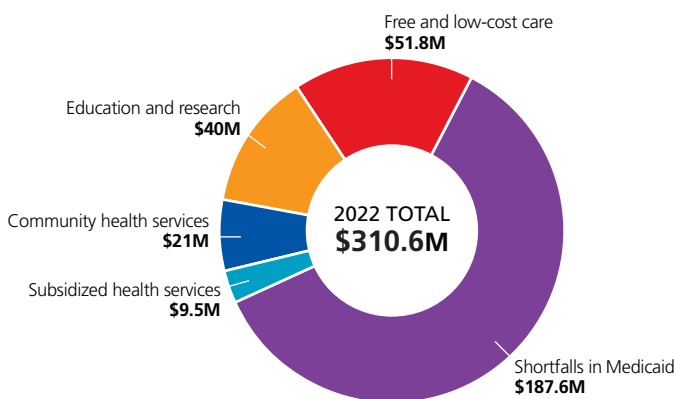

Providence supported Lines for Life's YouthLine, a critical communication resource for teens and young adults ages 10 to 24 who struggle with social interactions, substance use, self-harm and thoughts of suicide. In addition to Lines for Life staff, the YouthLine is covered by teen volunteers who help their peers through challenging situations.
